PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Rotarians and friends

Although I have never seen the TV series, we were certainly "Packed to the Rafters" on Monday night. I could continue in the same vein with "there wasn't enough room to swing a cat" but that's going a little too far.

Having said that, there did seem to be more than usual attend our meeting. Was this because the word was out that we have a President Elect and not only that we have filled all bases and have a President Nominee. Congratulations to John who has accepted the position as President Elect and Barb who has put her hat in the ring for President Nominee. I believe it's one of the signs of a strong Club to have these two positions filled ahead of time. Not that I was concerned, but am practical enough to realise that two years of me as President would not have been the way forward. So, congratulations again and we can look forward to two bumper years to come.

One of the reasons for a full house was the presentation of two prizes from The Mandurah Districts photo competition. Olivia Plant, who lives in Canning Vale was the winner of the Youth in Focus prize and DGN Patricia Schraven asked if the award could be presented at our meeting, being somewhat closer to Olivia than Mandurah. Olivia brought the whole family and we had two Mandurah Districts Rotary members presenting the prize. Then, of course, our very own Jeff Spickett was the winner in the Open Section. Thankfully only Evadne was representing the family, although at one stage it did look as if the Spickett clan were to attend (without Jeff knowing). Carole had emergency seating in the general main section of the Kardinya just in case. All's well that ends well, and we got by, the awards were made and I think everyone went home happy.

Our guest speaker Phillip Payne was interesting. We tend to read about the economic advantage that overseas students bring to W.A. and the figures, as presented, were eye opening.

I think we are all up to date with the date and arrangements for this year's Christmas Dinner on 14 December. A little bit of a heads up, we will, once again, be asking that you donate canned, dried or packet food etc. for those less fortunate this Christmas. Details will be announced soon, more than likely after the November board meeting.

Next week we will hold the Melbourne Cup Sweep. Ian is the bookie for this event and also possibly the bag man. We have sold all 24 horses in the $2 and $5 raffles. My confession is that I have never been to a horse race, if you do not count the trots.

Finally our thoughts go out to Bev and Charles. I for one put in my $2 when Mick was looking for past motorcyclists. He should have doubled the fine for those with an accident. I would have had to put in $4, so better he didn't.

I do believe that Jeff was interviewed by Kerry Scott on Radio Fremantle on Monday. If you wish to catch up on the interview it is in the archive section on their website.

Yours in Rotary
Neil

MATTHEW SCANLON

Matthew is Program Coordinator at Carine Senior High School and Chairperson, Fair Game Australia, a health charity with an innovative approach to reducing inequality for under-serviced communities around Australia - including Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders - via recycled sports equipment.

“International education has been identified as a key component of the WA Government’s plan to grow and diversify the State’s economy. While the financial impact of international education is significant, the benefits of welcoming an increasing number of international students to WA go well beyond the purely economic. International students bring diversity and a cultural richness to our community, helping to build the State’s links and relationships with other countries, especially our trade partners.”

Rotary History

Rotary becomes intercontinental

On 1 August 1912, the Rotary Club of London, Greater London, England, became the first Rotary club in Europe. Although Rotary had already become international in April of that year with the chartering of the Rotary Club of Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, the club in the United Kingdom earned Rotary the distinction of being an intercontinental organization.

After the London members organized the club, it took a year to receive its charter. Correspondence between General Secretary Chesley R. Perry and charter member Arthur P. Bigelow reveals some of the club members' questions about joining and paying dues to what was then the National Association of Rotary Clubs, made up of only U.S. clubs.

Perry encouraged them to "forget that the word 'national' is in the name," noting that if Winnipeg, London, and others were to join, the association would "simply have to change its name to the Inter-National Association."

Beyond London

The London club, along with four U.S. clubs chartered on the same day, increased the worldwide club total to 50. Within a short time, Rotary grew to have eight clubs in England, Ireland (including what is now Northern Ireland), and Scotland. The seven clubs after London and their RI charter dates were:

- Glasgow, Strathclyde, Scotland: 1 April 1913
- Belfast, Antrim, Northern Ireland: 1 May 1913
- Dublin, Dublin, Ireland: 1 May 1913
- Edinburgh, Lothian, Scotland: 1 May 1913
- Manchester, Greater Manchester, England: 1 May 1913
- City of Liverpool, Merseyside, England: 1 August 1913
- Birmingham, West Midlands, England: 1 April 1914

Rotary's presence didn't extend to mainland Europe until the Rotary Club of Madrid, Spain, received its charter in January 1921.

A unique approach

R.W. Pentland, of the Edinburgh club, used his appointment to the 1913-14 Rotary Board of Directors as an opportunity to improve connections among clubs. He gathered club officers in Liverpool in October 1913, seeking to enhance camaraderie and unity and to standardize practices among the Rotary clubs in the United Kingdom. The following May, club representatives met in London and created the British Association of Rotary Clubs (BARC).

Pentland reported on the new association to 1913-14 Rotary President Russell F. Greiner, who supported its creation. At the 1914 Rotary Convention, delegates approved a resolution to recognize the British association and its efforts to promote Rotary interests.

Clubs could become members of both BARC and the International Association of Rotary Clubs (now Rotary International) through two separate processes, and BARC clubs were actively encouraged to apply for affiliation with the International Association, but that wasn't required for several years.

After more than a year of discussions between the two associations, delegates at the 1922 Rotary Convention in Los Angeles, California, USA, changed the RI Constitution to make provisions for national or territorial units that would operate as administrative units of Rotary International. In particular, they would be empowered to approve applications and issue charter certificates for clubs in the designated territory.

The clubs of Great Britain and Ireland, through the BARC, applied for and received such status. After only five years, delegates again changed the constitution to stop creating territorial units but allowed existing units to remain. Rotary International in Great Britain and Ireland \(RIBI\) is the only territorial unit that remains in Rotary today.

Members of the Rotary Club of London, Greater London, England — with family, friends, and entertainer Harry Lauder of the Rotary Club of Glasgow, Strathclyde, Scotland (front row, second from right) — gathered in London before traveling to the 1922 Rotary International Convention in Los Angeles, California, USA.
